Welcome from the Dean

I am pleased to welcome you as you consider postgraduate studies with UNSW Law. UNSW Law is one of the world’s top ranking law schools and Australia’s leader in progressive and rigorous legal education.

The pre-eminence of our teaching, our research excellence and the outstanding support we provide students at every level are the characteristics that continue to attract the most talented teachers, researchers and students from Australia and internationally. Our ranking of 13th top law school in the world in the most recent and authoritative QS World University Rankings, puts us in the elite of legal education providers internationally.

Our flexible postgraduate programs harness a comprehensive selection of courses from across the University, including UNSW Business School, UNSW Arts & Social Sciences, UNSW Medicine, UNSW Science and UNSW Canberra. A commitment to continuous improvement of all our offerings and to attracting the very best students is reflected in our recent introduction of the Master of Environmental Law & Policy.

The well-established UNSW Master of Laws offers law graduates an opportunity to acquire further expertise and enhance their career prospects. Traditional courses sit alongside new and emerging topics, allowing our students to tailor a program to their own professional requirements.

UNSW Law also provides opportunities for specialised legal education for students whose first degree was not in law. These programs include the Master of Business Law, the Master of Criminal Justice & Criminology, the Master of Dispute Resolution, the Master of Environmental Law & Policy, the Master of Human Rights Law & Policy, the Master of International Law & International Relations, the Master of International Law & Security and the Master of Law, Media & Journalism.

All our programs are supported by a teaching faculty which ranks among the finest in the world, with a vibrant mix of leading international academic experts teaching alongside distinguished members of the profession. UNSW Australia is a leading research-intensive university and the Law School’s outstanding research informs, inspires and enlivens our teaching.

Our international visitors, the international standing of the faculty, and the international opportunities for study which are available to our students combine to give our programs an outstanding global flavour. In addition, our students come from all parts of the world, are taught by staff drawn from a wide variety of jurisdictions, and study in a state-of-the-art law school in one of the world’s great cities.

We are pleased to be able to offer so many programs to both law and non-law graduates. A key feature of the UNSW study experience is the opportunity to engage, network and learn from fellow students and teachers – a more diverse student cohort will only enhance this experience. Thank you for considering our programs and I look forward to welcoming you as a student at UNSW Law.

Professor George Williams AO
Dean, UNSW Law

Postgraduate
UNSW Law: In brief

A world class law school
Ranked 13th best law school in the world in the most recent QS World University Rankings, graduates from UNSW Law receive an internationally-recognised qualification. Our wide range of program and course offerings allow students to design a study program that suits their professional or personal needs.

Our programs span the following specialist study areas:
- Business Law
- Corporate and Commercial Law
- Criminal Justice and Criminology
- Dispute Resolution
- Environmental Law
- Human Rights Law
- Innovation Law
- International Business and Economic Law
- International Law
- Media and Technology Law
- Taxation

Our LL.M specialisations are popular with both new graduates and experienced lawyers who seek a professional edge in their career. In 2017 we will have 11 LL.M specialisations to choose from.

Course and program offerings are continually reviewed to ensure that the curriculum accurately reflects and anticipates the growing needs of our students, the profession and industry.

Practical and applied, recognised and relevant programs
Our programs are designed to provide students with the most up-to-date learning in all areas of professional life. Our graduates acknowledge that the education they have received gives them the skills and attributes to succeed in their chosen career paths.

We help practising lawyers to build their legal knowledge and develop the skills and understanding needed to provide the very best service to their firm and clients. Continuing Professional Development (CPD) units can be counted towards postgraduate study considered relevant to immediate or long-term professional development and legal practice.

UNSW Law Careers Service
UNSW Law offers students an in-house careers service led by highly experienced staff who have significant knowledge of the legal careers market. Students can access specialist advice and extensive networks within the legal profession and other relevant industries, and can seek assistance in pursuing the broad variety of job opportunities and career paths open to our graduates.

Graduate destinations
UNSW Law alumni are among the nation’s most influential lawyers. They include judges of the Federal Court, Supreme Court, Family Court and High Court in the Asia-Pacific region. Some are leaders in top Australian law firms. Many of our postgraduate students work as barristers, partners in large law firms, and in-house legal counsel in corporate and consulting firms. They hold senior positions in government, NGOs and large corporations.

Local postgraduate internships
Students in any Masters program may enrol in an internship to acquire the knowledge and skills obtained by witnessing and experiencing legal processes at work, both in our centres as well as external organisations beyond the Law School, such as NGOs, courts and tribunals, charities, arms of government, legal centres and elsewhere. Here, students can put their skills and knowledge to practice through advocacy, research, preparation of legal materials and event coordination — all skills transferable to future careers.

In addition, postgraduate internships provide students with the opportunity to undertake project research and writing with a partner organisation. Some of our partner organisations include: Aboriginal Legal Service; Amnesty International; Cancer Council NSW; Edmund Rice Centre, Justice Action; People with Disability Australia; Refugee Advice and Casework Service; Tranby National Indigenous Adult Education and Training; and Women in Prison Advocacy Network.

The Postgraduate Internship Program allows students to put their legal and advocacy skills and knowledge to use and gain practical experience of the law in action. Through policy, citizen work, advocacy and law reform projects, students strengthen their practical skills in research, writing, problem-solving, teamwork and independent judgment. Students usually spend one day each week at their placement organisation. Students are allocated an individual academic supervisor and attend program seminars.

For many of our postgraduate students, the work undertaken by UNSW Law’s highly regarded research centres, institutes and groups has proved invaluable to their study experience. The Australian Human Rights Centre, the Cyberspace Law and Policy Community and the Gilbert + Tobin Centre of Public Law, among others, provide unique practical professional opportunities with our postgraduate programs.

Human rights internships
The Human Rights Internship Program offers postgraduate students the opportunity to undertake project research and writing in a partner organisation with a focus on the protection and promotion of human rights. Under the supervision of a member of the partner organisation and UNSW Law, students gain valuable experience in research, analysis, writing and advocacy on aspects of law, policy and practice relating to human rights. International internships can be undertaken if arranged by individual students. Recently students have completed internships at Human Rights Watch (New York) and with the Hague Conference of Private International Law (The Hague).

Diverse
With most of our programs open to both law and non-law graduates, students bring a wealth of experience to the classroom. For many of our postgraduate students, a real highlight of their studies is the opportunity to establish new professional networks and friendships.

Interdisciplinary
A feature of many of our postgraduate programs is the interdisciplinary opportunities they present. Depending on your program, you may also be able to select courses from UNSW Business School, UNSW Arts & Social Sciences, UNSW Science or UNSW Canberra.

Flexible
Our programs place great emphasis on flexibility, allowing students to juggle the competing demands of their professional and personal lives. In addition to running courses at convenient times and places, we allow students to leave when they require it. We also allow students to move between programs if they decide another offering suits them better. And we allow students (with the approval of the Director) to take courses in other universities’ Masters courses (in Australia and overseas) and to credit them to the UNSW program. Finally, we offer a range of opportunities for international study and engagement: see the ‘International Opportunities and Engagement’ section (p13).

Convenient
With courses offered in a variety of formats – including weekly classes, intensive classes, and summer school options – students have the opportunity to create a study timetable that supports their existing commitments. In addition, evening classes held at our Sydney CBD venues allow full-time workers to undertake postgraduate study with greater convenience.
Located on the east coast of the country, Sydney is the gateway to Australia and home to nearly five million people. Australia’s first and largest city, Sydney is also ranked the world’s 4th best student city in the latest QS World University Rankings (2016).

Sydney has an invigorating vitality which draws people outdoors. Beautiful sandy beaches and a stunning natural coastline engage locals and visitors all year round. The city is also strikingly multicultural with a wide array of nationalities, languages, cultures and cuisines, complementing each other in a harmonious environment. Whilst our beaches dazzle, it is the world-renowned Sydney Harbour which provides the city’s most glamorous focal point. The UNSW CBD Campus is only a short walk from the busy harbour, which is dominated by the awe-inspiring Sydney Opera House and Sydney Harbour Bridge.

Situated on a 38-hectare site just 6 kilometres from the Sydney Central Business District is the main UNSW Kensington Campus, located in Sydney’s fashionable eastern suburbs. This Campus is only a 5 minute drive from Coogee Beach, and a 20 minute drive from world-famous Bondi Beach.

UNSW Law was founded on a progressive vision of legal education; one committed to excellence, to innovative scholarship, and to the fundamental principles of the rule of law and justice for all.

UNSW offers a range of accommodation for local and international students. We offer on and off-campus apartments, private rental units in surrounding suburbs as well as numerous short-term options. For more information visit: rc.unsw.edu.au or housing.unsw.edu.au.
Since its inception, UNSW Law has been recognised for its encouragement of active learning. Our model of interactive teaching in small to medium-sized classes means that the student is at the very centre of the learning process. A key indication of our success is that the UNSW model has become the national template for quality legal education. We continue to be one of the leading law schools for teaching excellence and innovation in Australia.

Engagement is fundamental to the student experience. Most classes average between 20 and 35 students and we require students to read before classes and to participate in class discussion. This enables lively class debate and enhances the learning experience. Assessment is continuous and diverse and includes research papers and projects. Open and friendly teacher-student interaction is a hallmark of UNSW Law.

All of our postgraduate programs are designed with professional practice and the application of legal knowledge in mind. From the detailed doctrinal study of recent case law to analysing the pronouncements of international tribunals, our courses concentrate on law in action. Assessment tasks typically invite students to research issues of contemporary importance in practice. For example, the innovative Postgraduate Internships (see law.unsw.edu.au/pginternships), open to all students in a Masters program, allow students to acquire the knowledge and skills gained by witnessing and experiencing legal processes at work: in NGOs, courts and tribunals, charities, arms of government, legal centres and elsewhere. This opportunity is available every semester, and complements the practical and applied law focus in our other courses taught by leading practitioners and academic researchers.

Intensive classes
Intensive courses are concentrated classes over full or half-days, or weekends. This mode of delivery is particularly attractive to those in demanding full-time employment to undertake postgraduate study. Please note that 100% attendance is required for intensive programs.

Intensive summer school
Summer school is an integral part of the UNSW Law School postgraduate coursework program. This additional academic session during December and January allows greater flexibility for students wishing to fast track their degrees or for those students needing to balance work and study commitments.

Please note that courses offered in our postgraduate programs by UNSW Business School, UNSW Arts & Social Sciences, UNSW Medicine, UNSW Science and UNSW Canberra may differ in format and location – please consult the relevant faculty for further information.

Weekly classes
Courses offered on a weekly basis, over a 12 week semester, take the form of small groups. Weekly classes are held in the evening outside traditional business hours (usually between 6pm and 8pm).

Our Law Building is purpose built for teaching, learning and researching law. Light filled atria spaces, open staircases, landscaped courtyards and student meeting places have set a benchmark in law school design, creating a quality teaching, learning and research environment for our students and staff.

Weekly classes are held at both the UNSW Kensington Campus and the UNSW CBD Campus. The CBD Campus is located in the heart of Sydney’s financial district, in the landmark 1 O’Connell Street building and is a contemporary training and executive education centre.

We recognise that postgraduate students have particular needs. We have a team of student services officers, dedicated to assisting with any aspect of the postgraduate program, including course choice, international engagement opportunities, deferring or dropping courses, or other administrative matters.

The UNSW Herbert Smith Freehills Law Library, located in the Law Building at the Kensington Campus, is one of the finest law libraries in Australia. It has comprehensive primary statutory and case law materials from Australian, Canadian, United States, and English jurisdictions. Group study rooms and quiet study areas are also available. Within the Law Library there are computer labs for students to access the large and ever growing number of legal and law related databases to which the Law Library subscribes. Most of these databases can be accessed from any Internet connected computer outside of the Law Library.

The Law Building features a dedicated study space for postgraduate students, in addition to a 24 hour postgraduate computer lab.

The Learning Centre offers academic skills support to all students enrolled at UNSW, with many resources specifically for postgraduate students. The Centre also offers a range of learning and language assistance programs. For further details, please visit lc.unsw.edu.au.
International opportunities and engagement

Overseas electives

Santiago, Chile
This overseas elective, Transitional Justice in International and Comparative Perspectives, explores the legal and other regulatory dimensions of transitions from dictatorships to democracies – from comparative and international perspectives. Studying in Chile, a country that experienced and emerged from one of the most brutal military dictatorships of the twentieth century, students are given unique insight into how transitional justice processes happen on the ground, and take into account the legal, social and political dimensions of transitional justice.

Eligible students enrolled in: Master of Laws, Master of Human Rights Law & Policy, Master of International Law and International Relations, Master of Dispute Resolution, Master of Criminal Justice and Criminology, and Juris Doctor.

Shanghai, China
Chinese Legal System is a two-week intensive course that provides an introduction to the legal system of the People’s Republic of China with particular reference to modern developments in commercial law. In addition to the fascinating study of a legal system that has changed markedly in the last thirty years, students can see this legal system in practice with field trips to a Chinese law firm and Chinese court. The itinerary also includes opportunities to experience local culture and attractions.

Eligible students enrolled in: Master of Laws, Master of Business Law, and Juris Doctor.

New York, USA
Human Rights Law in Practice is a two-week intensive overseas elective that examines the operation of human rights law in practice in international, regional and domestic US and Australian contexts. Based at Columbia New York, the course draws together leading US and international human rights lawyers to provide cutting-edge case studies from US courts, regional human rights commissions and the UN system. It encourages students to critically reflect on the efficacy of key institutions, actors and strategies to promote and protect human rights at home and abroad. The itinerary includes field visits to the United Nations and other major New York landmarks.

Eligible students enrolled in: Master of Laws, Master of Human Rights Law & Policy, and Juris Doctor.

Zurich, Switzerland
This overseas elective, Law and Technology: Comparative Perspectives, is taught at one of Switzerland’s leading universities - the University of Zurich. The course introduces students to the potentially problematic relationship between legal rules and technological change. Students engage with the theories of law and technology, technology regulation and intellectual property with practical problem-solving activities.

Eligible students enrolled in: Master of Laws and Juris Doctor.

International exchange

Lausanne, Switzerland
This exchange opportunity allows students to complete part of their program in an unrivaled international setting with one of Europe’s most prestigious universities, the University of Lausanne. Lausanne is situated a short distance from Geneva and its international organisations, and visits to these organisations, form an important part of the exchange experience. LLM students at UNSW who have completed 24 units of credit (50% of their program) are eligible to apply. This exchange is particularly relevant to LLM students in the International Business and Economic Law stream at UNSW.

Other international study opportunities are open to students in the Human Rights Internship Program (LAWS8052).

Engagement extends beyond the classroom with students strongly encouraged to participate in ways that challenge and support more conventional methods of learning.

For more information on international opportunities, visit law.unsw.edu.au/international-opportunities.
Your academic faculty

UNSW Law brings a concentration of legal expertise to the postgraduate program. The diversity of teaching staff ensures that our courses are dynamic, topical and relevant. Many of our academics are national and international leaders in their fields, writing books, reports and articles which lead debates and set agendas.

Our staff are regularly recognised and awarded for their teaching and research and are often sought by the media for their professional opinion. In addition to their key teaching roles, they are prominent advisors to both the public and private sector. Students are also taught by leading legal practitioners, industry professionals and former judges; experts in their respective fields. Their immense experience provides a practical and contemporary approach to the law. Distinguished international visitors and guest lecturers bring their unparalleled knowledge and experience right to the classroom, providing unique international perspectives and global relevance. For a full list of our academic staff visit law.unsw.edu.au/staff.

Alison Battisson
LLM (Human Rights & Social Justice)
“I chose UNSW Law School as I wanted an interactive experience in which I would be engaged and pushed – both by lectures and my peers. I previously worked as a corporate lawyer for approximately 7 years in top tier firms in Australia and overseas – and I wanted a similar high calibre experience. When I decided on a career change into international human rights law, I wanted a school that would provide me with a solid basis in IHR – and provide an opportunity to look at issues in interesting and new ways. UNSW has certainly delivered! In particular, I attended a two week transitional justice program in Chile, which was simply mind expanding.”
International visitors

We are privileged to have a number of distinguished international visiting lecturers teach in our postgraduate program in 2017. Each brings not only incomparable specialist knowledge and expertise, but also new approaches and teaching styles – adding their very own ‘flavour’ to the postgraduate program.

Mark Brown
University of Sheffield, UK

Dr Mark Brown teaches comparative penology, crime in late modernity, criminal law, and legal processes at the School of Law, University of Sheffield, UK, where he also directs the PhD program and the MA in International Criminology. He is a Senior Advisor to the Global Initiative Against Transnational Organised Crime, a Geneva based civil society organisation, and a Research Associate at the National Research Institute of Papua New Guinea. Mark has published widely in the areas of punishment, risk, penal theory and history. His books include Penal Culture and Hyperincarceration: The Revival of the Prison (co-authored with colleagues at UNSW Law) and Penal Power and Colonial Rule.

Johannes M M Chan
Professor, University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong

Professor Johannes Chan is Professor of Law and former Dean of the Faculty of Law (2002-2014) at the University of Hong Kong, being the longest serving Dean of the Faculty. He was also a visiting professor to a number of universities in Europe and Asia, including being the BOK Visiting International Professor of Penn Law School, University of Pennsylvania (2014), Herbert Smith Freehills Visiting Professor of Cambridge University (2015), and a visiting fellow of Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge University. In recognition of his distinguished contribution to legal development through both advocacy in courts and legal research and publications, he was honoured by the Chief Justice in 2003 by his appointment as the first (and so far the only) Honorary Senior Counsel in Hong Kong. He specialises in human rights, constitutional and administrative law, and has over 200 publications.

Ian Eagles
Visiting Professorial Fellow, UNSW Law

At UNSW Law, Professor Eagles will be teaching the course, Global Issues in Competition Law and Policy. Professor Eagles is a former Director of the Centre for Commercial Law Research at Auckland University of Technology in New Zealand. He previously held a chair in law at the University of Auckland and was the founding Director of that institution’s Research Centre for Business Law. He has published widely and his teaching and research are largely focused on intellectual property and competition law.

Guy Goodwin-Gill
Professor, University of Oxford, UK

Professor Guy Goodwin-Gill joins UNSW Law in mid-2017, where he will be part of the Andrew & Renata Kaldor Centre for International Refugee Law. He is Emeritus Fellow of All Souls College, Oxford and Emeritus Professor of International Refugee Law of the University of Oxford. He also practises as a barrister from Blackstone Chambers in London. He has held academic appointments in a number of prestigious international universities. He has published widely in the areas of international refugee law, human rights law and humanitarian law, child soldiers, and free and fair elections.

Barry Goldson
Professor, The University of Liverpool, UK

Professor Goldson holds the Charles Booth Chair of Social Science at the University of Liverpool. He is an international expert in youth criminology/youth justice studies and the founding editor of Youth Justice: An International Journal (SAGE). Professor Goldson is also a member of the Panel of European Youth Researchers (PEYR) appointed by the Council of Europe and the European Commission to advise on pan-European youth policy. He is undertaking research with UNSW colleagues on the punishment of young people.
Andreas R. Ziegler
Professor, University of Lausanne, Switzerland

Professor Ziegler has taught international law and international organisations at the University of Lausanne since 2007. He is a member of the editorial boards of the European Law Review and the International Journal of Law and International Affairs. He is also a member of various association courts.

Elena Sciso
Professor, LUISS Guido Carli University, Italy

Elena Sciso is a Professor of International Law at the Libera Università Internazionale degli Studi Sociali “Guido Carli” (LUISS) in Rome, Italy, and the Director of the LUISS Research Centre on International and European Organisations. At LUISS she is also the Director of the Summer School on International Trade: Law and Economics. Professor Sciso is a member of the International Law Association’s International Committee on Human Rights Law and Practice and a former member of the Legal and Technical Commission of the International Seabed Authority. Masters Degrees

UNSW Masters degrees require the completion of 48 UOC, or 8 courses (1 course = 6 UOC).*

To incorporate a specialisation into a Master of Laws by Coursework degree, students must choose 4 courses (24 UOC) from those allocated to that specialisation. The remaining courses may be selected from any of those offered by UNSW Law (unless otherwise stated).

Masters Programs

- 8 courses
- 48 Units of Credit (48 UOC)

Masters students will be required to take some courses categorised as ‘Research Based Courses’ as part of their 48 UOC program. The assessment required for the large majority of postgraduate courses on offer each year means that they meet this ‘Research Based’ requirement. Details of which courses qualify as ‘Research Based Courses’ will be available in the 2017 Handbook entries for each Masters program, and also on the website.

Students who have completed 36 UOC but become unable to complete their Master program may be eligible to exit with a Graduate Diploma.

Single Course Enrolment

Some students just want to study a particular course or 'test the waters' before enrolling in a full degree program. We offer enrolment on a single course, non-award basis, with the option to credit courses towards a future degree program. Continuing Professional Development (CPD) units may be claimed for postgraduate study considered relevant to students’ immediate or long-term needs in relation to their professional development and practice of the law.

CPD units can be claimed whether courses are taken for credit as part of a postgraduate program, or if taken as a single course on a non-award basis. It is also possible to ‘audit’ a CLE course, or even part of a CLE course, that is, to attend classes and receive course materials, but not complete assessment. In these cases, a reduced fee is payable. Please see the CLE website (cle.unsw.edu.au) for further details.

Cameron McPhedran
Master of Criminal Justice & Criminology

“The UNSW Law Masters program is a rigorous level of study but one where you are expected to challenge yourself and are given the opportunity to do so in a variety of ways. I value the analytic lens that Criminology has helped me develop - the program encourages students to be critically informed and actively involved with law and policy.”

*The Master of Environmental Law & Policy requires the completion of 72 UOC or 12 courses.

The Master of Environmental Law & Policy requires the completion of 48 UOC to be eligible to exit with a Graduate Diploma.
The UNSW Master of Laws offers law graduates an opportunity to acquire further expertise and enhance their career prospects. Our LLM program is ranked among the finest in Australia, with 11 specialisations contributing to a rigorous and challenging academic program.

Program
- Master of Laws

Code
- 9200

Units of credit
- 48 UOC

No. of courses
- 8 courses

Duration
- 1 year full-time, 2 years part-time

Semester start
- Semester 1 & Semester 2

Entry requirements
- LLB/JD with minimum credit average or LLB/JD with minimum two years’ relevant professional experience

In order to be awarded an LLM with a specialisation, students must pass at least 4 courses in their chosen field of specialisation. By incorporating a specialisation into their LLM, students can pursue an area of law that complements their existing legal practice or provides entry into a new legal field. Alternatively, students can complete a generalist LLM, choosing from the entire range of courses offered and tailor the program to meet their professional needs.

We offer the following specialisations:
- Corporate & Commercial Law
- Corporate, Commercial Law & Taxation
- Criminal Justice & Criminology
- Dispute Resolution
- Environmental Law
- Human Rights & Social Justice
- Innovation Law
- International Business & Economic Law
- International Law
- Media & Technology Law
- Taxation

LLM (Corporate & Commercial Law)
- Lawyers seeking to upgrade their commercial and regulatory skills can select from a diverse offering of well-established and innovative courses.
- The objective in all of our Corporate & Commercial Law courses is to deliver highly relevant legal knowledge in a practical commercial and regulatory context. This allows law graduates to expand their areas of expertise or to explore existing knowledge at a deeper level.
- To achieve this, courses are taught by a combination of UNSW Law academics and leading visiting practitioners. Distinguished guest lecturers and international faculty are features of our courses. So whether a specialisation or a new career path is the goal, knowledge gained can be used in practice immediately.
- Courses range from core offerings in corporate law, governance, insurance law and insolvency, to new areas such as sport sponsorship and marketing.

LLM (Corporate, Commercial Law & Taxation)
- Lawyers wishing to gain an LLM qualification have the opportunity to obtain deeper and specialist knowledge in the dynamic area of taxation.
- This specialisation in Taxation harnesses the prestige and academic expertise of the Law School and UNSW Business School. It can be studied by weekly face to face classes in the Sydney CBD or intensive courses, usually at UNSW’s Kensington Campus. Students complete a minimum of 3 courses (18 UOC) offered by UNSW Law; a minimum of 4 courses (24 UOC) offered by the School of Taxation & Business Law within UNSW Business School; and 1 additional law or taxation course (6 UOC).

LLM (Criminal Justice & Criminology)
- Courses in the Criminal Justice & Criminology specialisation examine cutting-edge issues in a national and global context.
- This specialisation is marked by its engagement of criminological perspectives on topical legal issues – a hallmark of the research style of UNSW Law’s many criminal justice specialists.
- Consisting of internationally-regarded authors and experts, members of the Criminal Justice & Criminology Team participate closely in law reform and government policy development.
From remote wilderness to megacities, law plays a crucial role in shaping built and natural environments.

Environmental law is a diverse and dynamic field encompassing many complex challenges: from food, water and energy to transport and affordable housing; from climate change, pollution and biodiversity loss to new technologies such as unconventional gas and geotechnical engineering; from environmental markets to questions of democracy and activism. Resolution of these and other pressing issues requires an understanding of regulatory and policy processes at local, national and international levels.

Taught by Australian and international experts, students can select from a range of specialist courses designed to provide a comprehensive understanding of current issues in environmental law and the tools with which to craft sustainable solutions to meet the challenges of the 21st century.

In order to obtain the specialisation in Environmental Law, candidates must complete Environmental Law in Australia, International Environmental Law and two other specialist environmental law courses.

Dispute resolution focuses on the ability of a trained professional to work with disputing parties to avoid or resolve complex conflicts.

As a field of study, dispute resolution evaluates a range of processes that include negotiation, facilitation, mediation, arbitration and litigation within the civil law context and with restorative practices within criminal law. The Dispute Resolution specialisation is designed to allow lawyers and non-lawyers alike to gain an advanced level of knowledge and understanding of the issues, problems and conduct of dispute resolution processes that impact across both public and private sectors.

At UNSW Law, our highly qualified teachers examine and critique both theory and practice across civil and criminal law contexts. Our faculty research contributes further to policy debate and promotes the importance of dispute resolution as a central feature of the contemporary justice system.

Students can choose from a range of dispute resolution courses designed to develop their skills in identifying the underlying theoretical and practical issues arising in a range of dispute resolution processes. The purpose is to train them to think analytically and creatively about approaches and solutions to these issues.

Mediators who have undergone mediator training and been accredited to the national standard by LEADR/IAMA, the Association of Dispute Resolvers, may be eligible for advanced standing of 6 UOC or 1 course in the LLM.

Graduates of the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators in Australia who have completed the CIArb Diploma may be eligible for up to 12 UOC or 2 courses in the LLM.

The Human Rights & Social Justice specialisation provides a framework for using the law to mediate a just relationship between society and the individual.

Law and public policy issues are interwoven in innovative courses which challenge and equip students to make a dynamic contribution in a wide variety of professional fields. Partnerships with the Australian Human Rights Centre, the Indigenous Law Centre, the Gilbert + Tobin Centre of Public Law, the Diplomacy Training Program and the Social Justice Project, are a unique feature of our program.

The Innovation specialisation offers lawyers an opportunity to develop knowledge and skills in the area of intellectual property and related commercial laws.

With innovation and intellectual property increasingly valuable as key economic drivers in Australia and overseas, it is critical that those working in these areas fully understand the range of legal and commercial issues involved in protecting and commercialising innovation. This specialisation enables students to focus on areas of interest, while building both legal expertise and a strong awareness of the social and public interest considerations at stake.

This specialisation develops practical and theoretical knowledge of the law and policy affecting intellectual property and related commercial laws in Australia and internationally.

The Media & Technology specialisation offers lawyers an opportunity for study and research in some of the most dynamic areas of legal practice and public policy development.

The courses offered in this specialisation explore challenging new issues across areas such as media regulation, defamation, privacy, censorship, internet regulation and cybercrime. UNSW’s highly regarded team of media and IT experts, and the research centres with which they are associated – the Australasian Legal Information Institute (AustLII) and the Cyberspace Law and Policy Community - are at the forefront of research and practice through the receipt of numerous competitive research grants and engagement in Australian and international policy developments.

International business and economic law is the law which governs business transactions across national borders. It includes trade, investment and finance law, the ways of structuring and financing transnational transactions, and the globalising legal and economic context for these transactions.

The courses are directly relevant to Australian lawyers working on international transactions or in roles with an international dimension, and to foreign students looking to practise law or pursue a career in business in their own countries.

International law is central to an understanding of how States regulate their relations with each other as well as with individuals and organisations.

The policy decisions made every day by governments have international legal implications, and the international legal knowledge and skill of government lawyers and advisers is critical to the successful conduct of the business of government.

With international law standards affecting many areas of domestic law, including family, criminal, business, migration and maritime laws, this specialisation ensures lawyers practising today are conversant with international law concepts and methods.

The Master of Dispute Resolution program provides comprehensive and academically rigorous postgraduate study for those seeking a specialist qualification in dispute resolution theory and practice. The UNSW Master of Dispute Resolution is one of a very small number of specialist dispute resolution postgraduate qualifications available in Australia. The program enables students to develop skills in identifying the underlying issues that shape and inform a range of dispute resolution processes, and to think creatively about approaches and solutions to them. The courses promote interdisciplinary study through exposure to dispute resolution practitioners in a range of fields.

Advanced standing

Mediators who have undergone mediator training and been accredited to the national standard by LEADR/IAMA, the Association of Dispute Resolvers, may be eligible for advanced standing of 6 UOC or 1 course in the Master of Dispute Resolution. Graduates of the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators in Australia who have completed the CIArb Diploma may be eligible for up to 12 UOC or 2 courses in the Master of Dispute Resolution.

Program structure

All students must complete two compulsory courses (12 UOC) with the balance of the program selected from the elective courses on offer. This program does not lead to a professional qualification for legal practice.

Compulsory courses

✔ Dispute Resolution: Principles, Processes and Practices
✔ Principled Negotiation

Compulsory courses for non-law graduates

Students without a law degree must also complete one of the following courses:

✔ Legal Concepts, Research and Writing for Business Law
✔ Legal Concepts, Research and Writing for Criminal Justice and Criminology
International and domestic law are significant influences on environmental policy. There is virtually no aspect of environmental policy in which law does not play a role. Similarly, environmental law cannot be fully understood without an appreciation of the broader policy context in which it operates. This interdisciplinary program engages law, environmental management, and policy to tackle important social issues.

Compulsory courses
- International Environmental Law
- Environmental Law in Australia
- Legal Concepts, Research and Writing for Environmental Law
- Addressing Environmental Issues (UNSW Science)
- Frameworks for Environmental Management (UNSW Science)
- Tools for Environmental Management (UNSW Science)

Elective courses
Students must complete three of the following:
- Climate Law
- Development and Planning Law
- Environmental Markets
- Law and Society in the New Economy
- Law of the Sea
- Mining and Resources Law
- Natural Resources Law
- Research Thesis (6UOC, 12UOC)
- Sustainable Energy Law

Environmental studies courses
- Corporate Environmental Sustainability Reporting
- Environment and Development
- Environmental Management Research Internship
- Environmental Management Project Paper
- Managing Greenhouse Gas Emissions
- Media Advocacy and Public Education
- Scenario Development and Analysis for Sustainable Development

Check the UNSW Law website law.unsw.edu.au and UNSW Science website science.unsw.edu.au for courses on offer in 2017.

Program structure
The Master of Environmental Law & Policy program provides an interdisciplinary study program that meets the knowledge requirements of students interested in careers in environmental law, and environmental policy and management. This innovative program is the only one in Australia to fully integrate the otherwise separate disciplines of law, policy and management, focusing on the interactions and interrelation between the challenges, tools and decision-making frameworks of environmental law, environmental policy and environmental management. In doing so the program provides students with the interdisciplinary skills and understanding needed to address complex environmental sustainability challenges. Students develop sound theoretical and practical understanding of the environmental legal system, the frameworks of and tools for sustainable environmental management, and the complex policy issues presented by the environmental challenges of the 21st century.

Program
- Program: Master of Environmental Law & Policy
- Code: 9212
- Units of credit: 72 UOC
- No. of courses: 12 courses (6 compulsory)
- Duration: 1.5 years full-time, 3 years part-time
- Semester start: Semester 1 & Semester 2
- Entry requirements: Undergraduate degree with minimum credit average or undergraduate degree with minimum two years’ relevant professional experience

The program consists of six compulsory courses and six elective courses. All students are required to complete the core courses International Environmental Law, Environmental Law in Australia, Legal Concepts, Research and Writing for Environmental Law, Frameworks for Environmental Management and Tools for Environmental Management in the first year of study (for full-time enrolments). The compulsory course Addressing Environmental Issues should be taken in the final semester. The remaining units of credit must be chosen from the relevant Environmental Law and Environmental Studies electives. This program does not lead to a professional qualification for legal practice.

Human rights law is a system of international and domestic laws designed to protect and promote rights and freedoms which have been identified as essential to human dignity. Human rights norms purport to set standards in a broad range of areas, including political, civil, social, economic and cultural rights, the distribution of socio-economic resources and the status of particular social groups, including women.

Yet these standards will not be achieved without a continued demand by informed human rights professionals. Although human rights are universal and the entitlement of everyone, regardless of status, race, gender, nationality or other distinction, too often they are imperfectly understood and poorly observed.

Program structure

All students are required to complete the core course International Human Rights in the first year of study, and non-law graduates must also complete Legal Concepts, Research and Writing for Human Rights with the remaining units of credit chosen from the relevant human rights law and policy electives.

This program does not lead to a professional qualification for legal practice.

The Master of International Law & International Relations provides an interdisciplinary study program for students with backgrounds in law, the social sciences or humanities who are interested in a career in international law and international relations. It provides students with a strong theoretical and practical understanding of the international legal system, the workings of international politics and their effect on each other. This program is jointly offered by UNSW Law and UNSW Arts & Social Sciences, with Professor Andrew Byrnes (UNSW Law) and Dr William Clapton (UNSW Arts & Social Sciences) as the course Directors.

Program structure
Students are required to complete two compulsory courses (12 UOC) in the first year of study, then choose half of their elective courses from the law courses offered and half from the International Relations and Politics courses offered by UNSW Arts & Social Sciences.

This program does not lead to a professional qualification for legal practice.

Compulsory courses
- Principles of International Law
- The Politics of International Law (UNSW Arts & Social Sciences)
Master of International Law & Security

International law is a significant influence on security and strategy. The Master of International Law & Security is a joint program of UNSW Law and the School of Humanities and Social Sciences (HASS) at UNSW Canberra (Australian Defence Force Academy).

The degree provides an interdisciplinary study program that meets the developmental requirements of students interested in careers in international law and international security. The program provides students with a strong theoretical and practical understanding of the international legal system, the factors shaping the global and Asia-Pacific security and strategic environments, and the complex policy challenges presented by the new security agenda. This program is jointly offered by UNSW Law and UNSW Canberra, with Professor Andrew Byrnes (UNSW Law) and Associate Professor Craig Stockings (UNSW Canberra) as the course Directors.

Defence forces personnel should confirm which sources of funding may be available for this program. For further details, contact: c.stockings@adfa.edu.au

Program structure

Students are required to complete two compulsory courses (12 UOC) in the first year of study, then choose half of their elective courses from the International Law courses offered by UNSW Law and half from the Security and Strategic Studies courses offered by the School of Humanities and Social Sciences at UNSW Canberra.

The law courses in this program are offered only onsite at UNSW Sydney and are not available by distance. All of the courses offered by the School of Humanities and Social Sciences at UNSW Canberra are available online. Details of the courses available by this mode of learning will be notified at the start of each semester.

This program does not lead to a professional qualification for legal practice.

This program is only offered to domestic students.

Master of Law, Media & Journalism

The Master of Law, Media & Journalism is a specialist degree which equips students with the ability to interact with new media developments in a practical way and to understand the legal consequences of those interactions.

Program structure

Students are required to complete up to two compulsory courses (12 UOC) in the first year of study, then choose half of their elective courses from the Media & Technology Law courses offered by UNSW Law and half from the Media and Journalism courses offered by UNSW Arts & Social Sciences.

This program does not lead to a professional qualification for legal practice.

Compulsory courses

✔ Legal Concepts, Research and Writing: IP & Media Law (for non-law graduates)
✔ Understanding Contemporary Media (UNSW Arts & Social Sciences)
At UNSW Law, higher degree research candidates undertake thesis work supervised by some of Australia’s leading legal scholars. Currently, over 100 research candidates are undertaking research in a wide range of areas such as anti-terrorism, human rights, Indigenous issues, constitutional law, refugee law, domestic violence, international law, sports law, criminal law, therapeutic jurisprudence, forensic evidence, intellectual property, internet regulation, WTO and economic law, corporate law, finance law, environmental and water law. We offer full-time research students a workstation, some financial support for research related expenses, a course in research methods, research seminars, and access to the UNSW Herbert Smith Freehills Law Library.

Doctor of Philosophy (PhD)

The Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) gives candidates the opportunity to conduct a research project that will make a significant contribution to an area of knowledge.

A UNSW Law PhD produces researchers with the highest level of scholarly expertise. Throughout the program of study, candidates acquire advanced specialist research training in order to produce a thesis which provides evidence of independent thought and critical analysis, effective communication, and expert knowledge of the discipline. Graduates commonly pursue careers in academia, specialist legal practice and in related areas of law and policy work.

Duration
3 to 4 years (minimum duration for completion is 3 years).

Entry requirements
Recognised Masters degree (including a substantial research component) with minimum distinction average (75%), or a recognised 4 year Bachelors degree with first class Honours which includes a substantial research component, or the equivalent.

Doctor of Juridical Science (SJD)

The Doctor of Juridical Science (SJD) provides an opportunity to combine a doctoral thesis with the coursework component of a Master of Laws degree, and allows significant research into an area of interest often developed within the coursework program. The degree prepares candidates for an academic career and for high-level research and policy-related work.

Duration
1 year coursework (completed as a Master of Laws at UNSW) to articulate into 2 to 3 years of research (minimum duration for completion is 3 years).

Entry requirements
Completion of coursework component (UNSW Master of Laws by coursework) with a minimum distinction average (75%) is required to articulate to the SJD program.

Master of Laws by Research (LLM)

The Master of Laws by Research (LLM) requires completion of an original piece of research, similar to that required for a PhD but on a more modest scale. As with other research degrees, work is undertaken under supervision of experts in a chosen research area that enables development of original insights and critical research skills, in a supportive and stimulating environment.

Duration
1.5 to 2 years (minimum duration for completion is 1.5 years).

Entry requirements
Completion of a recognised 4 year Bachelor of Laws degree with Honours which includes a substantial research component, or the equivalent.

Areas of research strength
- Constitutional and Administrative Law
- Corporate and Commercial Law
- Criminal Law, Criminal Justice and Criminology
- Environmental Law
- Evidence and Procedure
- Human Rights and Social Justice
- Indigenous People and the Law
- Intellectual Property
- Law, Science and Technology (emerging strength)
- Legal and Social Theory
- Legal Education and Pedagogy
- National Security and Terrorism
- Private Law
- Public International Law
- Regulation and Regulatory Theory
- Transnational and Comparative Law

Pathway from UNSW JD to Oxford BCL or MLF

UNSW Law and Oxford University Faculty of Law have signed a memorandum of understanding to give UNSW JD students the opportunity to graduate with two internationally recognised qualifications in just three and a half years. Students will spend 2.5 years at UNSW and 1 year at Oxford.

Oxford University’s highly regarded Bachelor of Civil Law (BCL) and Masters in Law and Finance (MLF) will be open to applications from UNSW JD students in their fourth semester of study at UNSW. Successful applicants will complete their fifth semester at UNSW and then undertake a full academic year at Oxford.

On completion, students will be entitled to receive a Juris Doctor (JD) from UNSW and a Bachelor of Civil Law (BCL) or Masters in Law and Finance (MLF) from Oxford University.

UNSW JD

The UNSW JD is a professional law degree for graduates of disciplines other than law and leads to admission to legal practice.

The UNSW JD is nationally and internationally recognised as a graduate level law degree and can be used as a basis for seeking admission to the legal profession in Australia and overseas. The UNSW JD allows students to study law at a postgraduate level which reflects their maturity and proven proficiency with tertiary study.

Flexibility

A key feature of the UNSW JD is the program’s flexibility. Students can study at a pace which suits their personal circumstances and learning style. The standard three year program can be studied over a longer period of time and students can start in Semester 1 or Semester 2.

Law in action

UNSW Law leads the way in innovative legal education. We encourage our JD students to gain high-level practical experience of the law through:

- Internships
- Clinics
- Competitions
- International exchange
- International short courses

These opportunities to experience law in action are credited to the student’s JD program.

Study 17 compulsory courses which provide comprehensive knowledge of the many areas of law that are fundamental to legal practice and an understanding of the legal system. They then choose 7 elective courses from a wide range on offer each semester.

Electives include the opportunity for high-level experience of legal practice in the form of internships, clinical practice at our own Kingsford Legal Centre, national and international mooting competitions, short courses overseas studying the legal systems of specific countries, and our international exchange program which allows students to go on exchange to one of our partner law schools around the world.

The UNSW JD comprises a mix of Commonwealth Supported Places (CSP) and full-fee places, with students selected on the basis of academic results in previous tertiary study. Please request a copy of the UNSW JD Guide for detailed information or visit the website at law.unsw.edu.au/jd.
FEE-HELP

FEE-HELP is a loan available to assist eligible students pay part or all of their tuition fees. It is available to students who are either Australian citizens or Australian permanent residents with a humanitarian visa. In 2016, the FEE-HELP limit was $99,389. This amount is indexed each year. For further information, please visit studyassist.gov.au.

Youth Allowance

Postgraduate students undertaking a UNSW JD may be eligible for Youth Allowance or Austudy income support. For further information please visit the Department of Human Services website at humanservices.gov.au/customer/themes/students-and-trainees.

Sandy Thai
Master of Criminal Justice & Criminology

“Interning at the Inspector of Custodial Services was incredibly rewarding and has given me invaluable insight into the law at work. It has allowed me to have a taste of what it would be like to operate at a high level with high standards, and how to enact changes and reform policies in areas of major concern and publicity.”
